From Puerto Montt to Puerto Chacabuco in 2 days and from Puerto Montt to Puerto Chacabuco in 2 days.

From Puerto Montt to Puerto Chacabuco in 2 days

Day 1 – Port Chacabuco to Port Montt

This voyage commences at Port Chacabuco, a small town of only 2,000 inhabitants that is the sea entrance port for the region of Aysén. It has a temperate climate with high rainfall. It is the most important terminal for transshipment and ships in the southern zone. Here we encounter hot springs, thousand year old forests, imposing glaciers and innumerable canals, fiords, lagoons and islands with a rich marine life.

Day 2 – Arrival at Port Montt

We pass through the Seno de Reloncaví in order to dock at the busy port of Angelmó in the city of Port Montt whose first inhabitants exploited the production of larch wood.

From Puerto Chacabuco to Puerto Montt in 2 days

Day 1 – Port Montt to Port Chacabuco

Port Montt is found in a spectacular bay and is flanked on the western side by the Tenglo Island. It is the meeting point of the southern zones of General Carlos Ibáñez del Campo y Magallanes. Strategically it is the best starting place for the touristic regions of southern Chile. Port Montt is also known for its seaport that connects the north with the southern austral.

Day 2 – Arrival at Port Chacabuco

Port Chacabuco is the key port of the Carretera Austral (Southern route) in that it is the unique connecting point between Port Montt and the South of Chile. It is close to the San Raphael Lagoon that is listed as a world patrimonial biosphere site. The voyage itinerary takes us by icebergs, the enchanting areas such as the San Raphael Lagoon and the natural zones of the XI region of Aysén. One of the main attractions is the San Valentin glacier that is in plain regression and is suffering continuous detachments of ice. There are also hot springs, spectacular scenery of fiords and canals and a number of islands rich in marine life. Port Chacabuco, that has a population less than 2,000, is a zone with a temperate climate with high rainfall.
